A new offer in the Visual Arts Centre's jewellery department: you now have the opportunity to use our studio without taking a course. However, you must already be fully autonomous, as the only person present will be a studio technician. Their role is to show you where tools are located, ensure safety, and sell materials; they will not provide any support for questions regarding jewellery techniques. If you wish to work on your own projects but still need the support of a teacher, the "Jewellery All Levels" or "Personal Projects in Jewellery" courses are more appropriate.

If you already have a jewellery practice, want to reserve time to work on a new collection, or simply want a space to practice, this activity is for you! You will have access to all our tools, comprising polishing machines, torches (except for ingots), forging hammers, and other metal-shaping tools. You will also have access to our small shop, which stocks sterling silver (wire, sheet, findings) and brass sold by weight, as well as wax, saw blades, and small polishing accessories.
